The Department has been requested by the American Ambassador to [redacted] to arrange for the installation of radio equipment at the [redacted] suitable for the maintenance of communications with the existing station at [redacted]. This equipment is desired for use only in emergencies to assure continuity of communications if the normal channels of communication are concurrently interrupted.

It is our understanding that the Central Intelligence Agency is in position to provide the necessary equipment and to detail a qualified technician to install and test the apparatus. Present conditions are not considered sufficiently critical to warrant the assignment of a permanent operator.

It would be appreciated if the Central Intelligence Agency would make the above-requested installation and advise this office when it has been completed.
